The Acting Company presents William Shakespeare’s timeless tragedy Romeo & Juliet. This national touring production was directed by Leah C. Gardiner and it features a company of 11 actors. The gripping drama spun out of the ancient grudge between two families makes Romeo & Juliet as relevant to modern society as it was to audiences four centuries ago. The star-crossed lovers follow their passion to the ultimate tragic end. In Romeo & Juliet, Shakespeare offers some of the most glorious poetry ever written, spoken by complex and memorable characters, establishing the standard for all love stories written since. With gorgeous costumes and music, The Acting Company’s fresh production breathes new life into this enduring tale.

The Acting Company was founded in 1972 by John Houseman and Margot Harley with members of the first graduating class of Juilliard’s Drama Division. Since then, The Acting Company has presented 148 productions for over 4 million people across the world.

Experience the performance

Teacher Focus

Define the term prologue. Inform students that the prologue of Romeo & Juliet is unique because it outlines the plot points of the play before it even begins.

Student Activity

Pay special attention to the prologue of the play and how it relates to the plot points as they occur. What makes this prologue unique?

NJ Student Learning Standards

English Language Arts RL.9-10.5

---

Reflect, respond and read

Teacher Focus

Read the prologue aloud while students follow and review its summative nature. Provide a translation for students to reference.

Student Activity

Read the prologue of the play and its translation and consider how it tells the plot before the action has even begun.

NJ Student Learning Standards

English Language Arts RL.9-10.2

Focus

Teacher Focus

Discuss the elements of plot structure (exposition, conflict, rising action, climax, falling action, resolution) and identify where each plot point occurs within the prologue. Lead a discussion surrounding how each element is essential to creating a full story.

Student Activity

Annotate your handout to identify the elements of plot within the prologue. Imagine if one or more elements were missing! Would the story still make sense?

NJ Student Learning Standards

English Language Arts RL.9-10.2

Originate

Teacher Focus

Define the term dramatist or playwright and inform students that they will be creating a prologue of their own that summarizes the plot of a story. The story can be existing and familiar to students (i.e. a movie, play, book, etc.) or can be original. For students creating original stories, invite them to adapt a theme from Romeo & Juliet (love, death, loyalty, etc.) as the foundation for their story. Review Activity Sheet 2 together. If time allows, create a prologue based on a fairytale story as a class to serve as an example.

Student Activity

You can be a dramatist and create your own prologue that outlines plot points just like the one in Romeo & Juliet! Consider other familiar stories from books, movies, or even a fairytale. Create an original story plot using your imagination. Once you’ve chosen or created a story, write a prologue that outlines the plot points and summarizes your story. Just like in Romeo & Juliet, your prologue will share the story before the action in the play even begins.

Rehearse

Teacher Focus

Employ a peer review process once first drafts are completed. After students complete revisions based on peer feedback, allow them to perform for the class. Review aspects of public speaking/acting technique (eye contact, diction, projection, etc.). Encourage students to memorize their prologues for a more effective performance.

Student Activity

Share your first draft with a peer or peers. Consider their feedback and make revisions to your prologue. Provide constructive feedback on their first drafts. Practice your prologue independently while thinking about elements of good public speaking and acting. After you’ve made your revisions and practiced, perform the prologue in front of your class.

Make magic

Teacher Focus

Create an opportunity for a final performance of students’ prologues. This could be a live event, in correlation with an existing event, a recorded video compilation or any other idea that fits your circumstances. Distinguish the final performance as a special time for each student to be recognized for their hard work. Conduct a reflection activity after the final performance, allowing students to evaluate the process of creating and performing their prologues.

Student Activity

It’s your time to hit the stage, just like the actors you saw in Romeo & Juliet! Consider the process you’ve followed to create and rehearse your prologue. If you could repeat the process, what would you do differently? How have you grown as a dramatist and performer through this experience?
