

jazz

hip-hop

spoken word

Language
LIBERATES

DODGE POETRY

3-day festival

oct 17 – 19

njpac

dodge poetry festival map

- 1 NJPAC
Prudential Hall
Victoria Theater
Chase Room
NICO Kitchen + Bar
1 Center Street
- 2 Center for Arts Education (CAE)
24 Rector Street
- 3 New Jersey Historical Society
52 Park Place
- 4 Military Park · 51 Park Place
- 5 Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral
608 Broad Street
- 6 Express Newark
Hahne & Co.
54 Halsey Street · 2nd Floor
- 7 St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral
91 Washington Street
- 8 Clement's Place
Rutgers University
15 Washington Street
- 9 Newark Public Library
5 Washington Street · 2nd Floor

Light Rail Stops

Festival Bookstore

Parking

Information (located inside rotunda)

thursday, october 17

For the fourth Festival in a row, the Academy of American Poets — a leading supporter of poets and poetry across the United States for 90 years — teams up with the Dodge Poetry Festival to present readings and conversations on the art and practice of poetry. The Academy's Board of Chancellors have curated three sessions (*) on Thursday, which they will also lead. The Chancellors are a group of esteemed poets who serve as artistic advisors to the organization and ambassadors of poetry to the nation at large.

10:30 – 11:40AM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

Academy of American Poets Presents: Poetry & Pause*

Ed Roberson and Tracy K. Smith

A conversation with Academy Chancellors Ed Roberson and Tracy K. Smith on slowing down in a rapidly evolving climate and world. Hand-in-hand with justice work, the act of reading poems responds to the profound need for reflection.

CART captioned.

10:30 – 11:40AM

Chase Room, NJPAC

The Nature of the Poetry Biz

Dr. Helena D. Lewis, Nancy Mercado and JRose

Poetry is an art form; being a poet is also a business proposition. Get the inside scoop on the undiscussed business of poetry from how to get a book published, to how to market yourself and establish an LLC. Poets who've made a living with their words will read their works, and then offer real-world tips for navigating writing careers.

12 – 1:10PM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

Academy of American Poets Presents: Poetry & Resurgence*

Carolyn Forché, Patricia Smith and Afaa Michael Weaver

A conversation with Academy Chancellors Carolyn Forché, Patricia Smith and Afaa Michael Weaver on the use of writing prompts/exercises — and “model” poems accompanying these prompts — as active and responsive ways to invite creativity, especially in our rife times.

12 – 1:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Publishing in the Era of Social Media

Cito Blanco, Jeri Rae and JRose

Poets have found amazing success promoting their work on social media platforms. These plugged-in poets, who can boast of large followings, will talk about how they've promoted their work digitally and how a social media following is replacing a string of magazine publications as a way to launch a career and promote a new book.

1:30 – 2:40PM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

Academy of American Poets Presents: Poetry & the Collection*

Jericho Brown and Kimiko Hahn

A conversation with Academy Chancellors Jericho Brown and Kimiko Hahn that demystifies what building a poetry collection is all about — how to start, where to end, and how to keep attention going. Sharing poems from their own poetry collections, this session is tailored for educators and for lifelong learners of the art form.

CART captioned.

1:30 – 2:40PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Writing the Best Years of Your Life

Kathy Kremins, Dr. Helena D. Lewis and Ameerah Shabazz-Bilal

Have a conversation with an experienced generation of poets, and hear them read some of the best works of their careers, at this gathering that focuses on mature poets who are thriving artistically. What experiences are these poets documenting, and what kinds of conversations do they want to have with young writers and with each other? What kind of resources ensure that they can continue their work? Learn how to keep the words flowing through the decades.

thursday, october 17

3 – 4:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Activism and Poetry for Educators

Kai Coggin, Diana Goetsch, Paul con Queso LaTorre and Ameerah Shabazz-Bilal

How can poetry bring activism into the classroom and other learning spaces? Hear from educators and activists who have found success in getting learners — from children to adult learners to incarcerated people — interested in social justice by incorporating poetry into their lesson plans. This conversation offers best practices for tying poetry to social justice and is appropriate for a wide range of educators, or for those simply curious about the connections.

7:30 – 10PM

NICO Kitchen + Bar

Free!

Catalyst Open Mic and Mixer hosted by EvoluCulture

Join us on opening night when Dodge Poetry and EvoluCulture, Newark's staple poetry organization, will offer an opportunity to be on stage and share your work alongside a live jazz band. This is YOUR chance to connect and mingle with festival poets and members of the Newark arts community. EvoluCulture CEO and poet Sean Battle will emcee, headlined by poets Craig Bradley, DS Will and Newark's own Margie "Mia X" Johnson with other surprises in celebration of EvoluCulture's 10th anniversary and the 20th Dodge Poetry Festival. This event is free, no ticket needed. Doors open at 7PM — please arrive early to sign up for the open mic.

friday, october 18

Starting at 9AM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC

Hip Hop Arts & Culture Performances

Throughout Young Artist Day, enjoy music and performances by a DJ and lyricists from Hip Hop Arts & Culture. This NJPAC Arts Education program asks students to come up with creative ways to express their style, point of view and imagination. Talented hip hop faculty bring lyrical ideas to life and develop skills in emceeing, music production, dance and choreography. Join Hip Hop Arts & Culture and celebrate more than 50 years of this artform — a phenomenon that inspires everyone to be their best selves!

9:30 – 10:40AM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC

Poetry as Catalyst: Inspiration & Motivation

Cortney Lamar Charleston, Ching-In Chen, Aracelis Girmay and Haydil Henriquez

What motivates communities mobilizing for change and fuels long-term social movements? Joy. Hear from writers who make a difference by focusing on the inspiration that sustains the work of poets and activists alike. How do we locate wonder and practice rejoicing in the midst of struggle? Hear how these poets search for hope in this very challenging work.

CART captioned.

9:30 – 10:40AM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

Writing Our Story, Preventing Erasure

Ariana Benson, Kathy Kremins, Nicole Sealey and Issam Zineh

How do we preserve and lift up narratives that history has nearly forgotten? Or excavate stories that have been suppressed and ignored? Poets from a range of backgrounds discuss the importance of telling our communities' stories — ensuring truths are preserved in the historical record — by way of poetry.

friday, october 18

9:30 – 10:40AM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Poetry as Catalyst:
Field Notes from Newark

Tehsuan Glover, Paul con Queso LaTorre and Ameerah Shabazz-Bilal

Poets discuss Newark as a model city for advancing social justice through the arts. Brick City writers offer their take on using poetry as a powerful tool to spur political movements and societal evolution, plus hear all the ways this jewel of a city continues to inspire and invoke love poems to and about Newark.

9:30 – 10:40AM

NJPAC Center for Arts Education

My Life as a Poet

Dr. Helena D. Lewis,
Dr. Craig Santos Perez,
Dimitri Reyes and Claire Schwartz

What happens when a poet wakes up in the morning? What is the daily routine of a word-worker? How can poets navigate a career in poetry? Successful poets unveil their daily lives; share personal observations, habits and experiences; and illuminate the challenges and rewards, delights and disappointments, of the life they've chosen in poetry.

9:30 – 10:40AM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral

Developing a Lexicon
Toward Liberation

Carlos Andrés Gómez,
Marwa Helal, Roque Raquel
Salas Rivera and Gein Wong

How do poets from marginalized and vulnerable communities experiment with new forms and definitions of poetry to create language that is all their own — one that expresses experiences of their communities? Hear from innovative poets who play on the page, offer breathtaking translations and reclaim power through text and language.

9:30 – 10:40AM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral

UndocuPoets

Janine Joseph, Esther Lin and Beatriz Yanes Martinez

The nonprofit UndocuPoets promotes the work of poets who are currently or formerly undocumented in the United States and raises consciousness about the structural barriers they face in the literary community. The organization works to expand access and provide resources to current and formerly undocumented poets, allowing them the means to focus on their work. Hear from three dynamic poets writing from this unique perspective.

9:30 – 10:40AM

Express Newark

Lucille Clifton's Buffalo:
Writing a City in Poetry

Kazim Ali

In a series of poems written across her lifetime, Lucille Clifton, who served as a Dodge Poetry Festival poet nine times since 1988, wrote about the people and neighborhood of her childhood home. These poems are political, nostalgic, angry and wistfully tender. By looking at several poems describing Buffalo, New York, Ali will offer writers an opportunity to gain tools and strategies to represent the homes and neighborhoods that have shaped them.

9:30 – 10:40AM

New Jersey Historical Society

Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

friday, october 18

11AM – 12:10PM

New Jersey Historical Society
Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

12:40 – 1:50PM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC
Nuyorican Poets Café
@ Dodge Poetry

Caridad De La Luz (La Bruja) ,
Paul con Queso LaTorre, Nancy
Mercado and Emanuel Xavier

Celebrate the legacy of Nuyorican Poets Café, founded 50 years ago in the East Village of New York City. With poetry and storytelling, these all-stars will explore the history of this cultural icon and peer into the future as its 100-year-old tenement building undergoes renovations in preparation for a grand reopening in 2026.

CART captioned.

12:40 – 1:50PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral
Poetry as Catalyst:
Field Notes from Activists
Kazim Ali, Diana Goetsch and Janine Joseph

How do we activate poetry as a catalyst for social change? Poets who are also grassroots activists talk about their work and how poems advance movements for positive change. This conversation is designed to offer suggestions on how we can all get involved as citizens — moving beyond writing and into the on-the-ground work of collective liberation.

Griots, Troubadours and MCs: Poetry and the Oral Tradition

For thousands of years before the invention of the printing press, people created poetry meant to be performed. From the areito performances of the indigenous tribes of the Caribbean and the griots of Western Africa, to modern day slammers and MCs, the spoken word has been central to poetry's vitality, proving that poetry has always been meant to be recited, performed and sung! In these sessions, poets are invited to perform works that celebrate the oral/aural wonders of poetry. This session will be the title event at seven different locations. See which of your favorites is performing at our various locations below.

11AM – 12:10PM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC

Ashna Ali, Mahogany L. Browne,
Imani Cezanne and Nancy Mercado

CART captioned.

11AM – 12:10PM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

George Abraham, Sean Battle,
Kai Coggin and Emanuel Xavier

11AM – 12:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Omotara James, Tyehimba Jess
and Eduardo Martinez-Leyva

11AM – 12:10PM

NJPAC Center for Arts Education

Noah Arhm Choi, Jessica Ram and Afaa Michael Weaver

11AM – 12:10PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral

Jessica Jacobs, Raina León and Myles Taylor

11AM – 12:10PM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral

Remica Bingham-Risher, Erin Marie Lynch, JRose and Vincent Toro

11AM – 12:10PM

Express Newark

Todd Davis, Niki Herd and Kween Moore

friday, october 18

12:40 – 1:50PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

The Things We Don't Talk About

Haydil Henriquez, Esther Lin,
Roque Raquel Salas Rivera
and Claire Schwartz

Poems can be lighthearted and fun, but they can also be the medium through which we have tough conversations about topics we don't often feel comfortable discussing. Poets who bring to light hushed topics, and constantly ask the tough questions in their work, read their poems and discuss how poetry can give voice to communities often silenced — particularly members of the BIPOC, LGBTQIA+ and disability communities.

12:40 – 1:50PM

NJPAC Center for Arts Education
Call & Response: Performing and Engaging Audiences

Ching-In Chen, Tehsuan Glover,
Carlos Andrés Gómez
and Dimitri Reyes

These dynamic performers have found ways to transform poetry readings into interactive experiences, from elements including call and response to other methods of inviting audience participation so that a reading becomes a true poetry experience. Get inspired and discover new ways to perform your own work!

12:40 – 1:50PM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

Letras Latinas Presents:
Because We Come
from Everything
Diannely Antigua,
Carmen Calatayud,
Blas Falconer and Naomi Ortiz

In "Borderbus" former U.S. Poet Laureate Juan Felipe Herrera writes, "We are nothing and we come from nothing / but that nothing is everything, / if you feed it with love / that is why we will triumph // We are everything hermana / Because we come from everything." How do poets embody Herrera's idea of coming from everything? And how does poetry empower our communities in troubling times? Four Latinx poets, presented by Letras Latinas, sing a sampling of their work — and show us how.

12:40 – 1:50PM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral
Writing Our Land: Environmental Justice

Ariana Benson, Todd Davis and Dr. Craig Santos Perez

From Appalachian mountains to indigenous tribal lands, poetry allows us to visit all kinds of landscapes and understand why protecting our land is important. Through a reading and conversation, poets from different lands will talk about capturing the spirit of a place, advocating for environmental justice and utilizing poetry to preserve the places that care for us and shape us.

12:40 – 1:50PM

Express Newark

When the Personal is Political
Cortney Lamar Charleston,
Niki Herd and Issam Zineh

It's hard to remove the "I" when writing about politics and identity, so how do seasoned writers turn a very personal moment into curiosity, and when should poets establish distance from a poem in order to craft it into a work of art? How do we unpack very raw emotions tied to the political in order to hold wonderment and space for asking tough questions, so that we can advance our communities and society with compassion and empathy?

12:40 – 1:50PM

New Jersey Historical Society
Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

friday, october 18

2:10 – 3:20PM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC

How History Informs Our Writing

Joshua Bennett, Tyehimba Jess,
Nicole Sealey and Vincent Toro

These seasoned poets engage with history, both documenting the past and inviting readers to explore actionable change for the future. Join us for an inspirational afternoon with writers whose poems have chronicled the Puerto Rican diaspora, the Black experience in America and pivotal moments in our nation's history. Poets will read from their work and passionately explore a way to chart a new path forward.

CART captioned.

2:10 – 3:20PM

New Jersey Historical Society

Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

6 – 7:30PM

Victoria Theater, NJPAC

The 2024 Nuyorican Slam Team @ Dodge Poetry

Known as "Friendly Fire," the 2024 Nuyorican Slam Team is the first adult team of slam poets New York City has formed since before the pandemic. Coached by Tony McPherson, the team consists of: Brittany Barker (the team's North Star, moral compass and Chief of Draft Management), Sumbodies Mama (Team Captain with powers that can only come from The Bronx), UGBA (Chief of Group Pieces & Choreography, Head of Costume Design) and Sola Kush (Champion who brought The Nuyorican a 1st place trophy for the first time this millennium). Through their writing, they hope to inspire us to win our own competition against our greatest nemesis: our egos.

CART captioned.

saturday, october 19

9:30 – 10:40AM

Prudential Hall, NJPAC

Praise and Reclamation

Mahogany L. Browne, Aracelis Girmay, torrin a. greathouse, Marwa Helal,
Douglas Kearney, Roque Raquel Salas
Rivera and Afaa Michael Weaver. With music accompaniment by Carlos "Carly" Maldonado

Celebrate and kick off the last, and most awe-inspiring day of the festival, with a dynamic reading by powerful voices lifting up their poems in gratitude and in praise of their roots, bodies and communities. This is an opportunity for festival attendees to gather in community with each other, open our day in rejoicing and music and break bread together in the form of poetry. Don't miss this very special festival experience.

CART captioned.

11AM – 12:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Poetry Generative Writing Workshop with Kai Coggin

The Dodge Poetry Festival is now offering an intimate space to generate new work with support from festival poets. Thought-provoking prompts will get your writing flowing in a 70-minute workshop. Space is first come, first served. Please be prepared with a pen and paper; arrive promptly and plan to stay for the full 70 minutes.

11AM – 12:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Queering the Poem

Kazim Ali, Jessica Jacobs, Kathy Kremins,
and Eduardo Martinez-Leyva

Authenticity lives in the gray and muddy realms where answers aren't so black and white. Queering a poem, or venturing into the beauty of the nonbinary, can offer up poems where an "answer" to a question is best expressed as an unknown. Some of our most interesting work challenges readers to lean into the unanswerable. Join us as we explore the blurred boundaries of gender, sexuality, love and identity.

CART captioned.

saturday, october 19

family fun day

Saturday, October 19

Military Park

FREE!

The extraordinary talent of regional poets will shine on the Community Catalyst Stage. Bring your family for activities including face painting, a DJ, drag storytelling and food truck vendors.

11AM DJ Wallah

11:30AM JP Howard, Megha Sood,
"King" Mariah Ayscue

12PM Harmonica SunBeam,
Chris Fabs and Honey Marie

1PM RescuePoetix,
Kay Ulanday Barrett

1:30PM attorious renee, Elliott Fant, paulA neves

2PM Talena Lachelle Queen, Italy
Ja'rae Lee, Scarlet Gomez

2:30PM Keisha-Gaye Anderson,
Positive Gunter, Alexis Green

3PM K. Desireé Milwood, Purvi Shah, Sean Battle

3:30PM Isabel Cruz,
Paul con Queso LaTorre

Participating individuals and organizations include:

Clean Water Fund	NJPAC Community
Newark Yoga Movement	Engagement
D-Cross	Poetry Foundation
EvoluCulture	Prudential Center /
Glass Roots	New Jersey Devils
Associated Humane	Sheila Silva
Societies – Newark	Somerset Patriots
Karina Kelly de Oliveira	St. Clare's Social Services
Lisa Lewis	The New Jersey
NAACP Newark	Historical Society
New Jersey Symphony	Umoja Dance Company
Newark Public Library	WBGO
NJ Kids on the Go	Local Newark food
NJPAC Arts Education	trucks & others

11AM – 12:10PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral

Writing Our Story, Preventing Erasure

Carlos Andrés Gómez, Tyehimba Jess, Kween Moore and Emanuel Xavier

How do we preserve and lift up the narratives that history has nearly forgotten? Or excavate stories that have been suppressed and ignored? Poets from a range of backgrounds discuss the importance of telling our communities' stories — ensuring truths are preserved in the historical record — by way of poetry.

11AM – 12:10PM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral

Braggadocious: Boasting Our Roots

Joshua Bennett, Tehsuan Glover, Dr. Helena D. Lewis, Dimitri Reyes and Vincent Toro

Who doesn't like a humble brag? Maybe there's no need to be humble when celebrating our origins, our roots and our cultures. Immerse yourself in readings that reflect on where we come from with pride and joy. How does praising our roots become an act of resistance that fosters healing and inspires jubilation?

11AM – 12:10PM

Express Newark

Cave Canem Presents:

Dante Micheaux in Conversation with Charif Shanahan and Taylor Johnson

Join Dante Micheaux, Program Director at Cave Canem, in conversation with Johnson and Shanahan, two poets building exceptional bodies of work who will share their award-winning poems. Cave Canem is pleased to once again add our Fellows' voices to the most vibrant poetry festival in the country!

11AM – 1PM

Newark Public Library

Dodge Poetry in the Community Youth Showcase
Featuring Festival Poet Imani Cezanne

Young artists showcase poems generated in a series of workshops leading up to the Dodge Poetry Festival. In partnership with community organizations in Newark, these young people have been guided by experienced mentor Newark poets and Rutgers–Newark MFA students to write poems that reflect their lives and their experiences. Prepare for poems emphasizing themes of identity, self-expression and social justice.

saturday, october 19

11AM – 12:10PM

New Jersey Historical Society
Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

12:30 – 1:40PM

Clement's Place
Poetry Generative Writing Workshop with Diana Goetsch

The Dodge Poetry Festival is now offering an intimate space to generate new work with support from festival poets. Thought-provoking prompts will get your writing flowing in a 70-minute workshop. Space is first come, first served. Please be prepared with a pen and paper; arrive promptly and plan to stay for the full 70 minutes.

12:30 – 1:40PM

Chase Room, NJPAC
Poetry as Catalyst: Field Notes

Claudia Rankine and Salamishah Tillet

In this intimate conversation, two of our country's foremost writers, poet Claudia Rankine and culture critic Salamishah Tillet, explore the intersection of language, identity and activism in civic life. You can learn more about communities across the U.S. that use creative expression to make social change. How can Newark's initiatives — tying the arts to social justice — serve as a muse and model to be replicated in other cities?

CART captioned.

12:30 – 1:40PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral
To Be Black and Conscious in America is to be in a Constant State of Rage
Sean Battle, Mahogany L. Browne, Niki Herd and Douglas Kearney

In honor of the centennial birthday of James Baldwin, hear from poets who are conceptualizing what it means to be Black in America. The presenters honor Baldwin's legacy by grappling with institutions perpetuating systems of oppression and straddling a divide that pits patriotism on one side with accountability on the other. How does living in the United States impact identity? Where will the search for racial justice end?

12:30 – 1:40PM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral
When the Personal is Political
George Abraham, Remica Bingham-Risher, Ching-In Chen, Haydil Henriquez and Dr. Craig Santos Perez

It's hard to remove the "I" when writing about politics and identity, so how do seasoned writers turn a very personal moment into curiosity, and when should poets establish distance from a poem in order to craft it into a work of art? How do we unpack very raw emotions tied to the political in order to hold wonderment and space for asking tough questions, so that we can advance our communities and society with compassion and empathy?

12:30 – 1:40PM

Express Newark
"A Poet's Heart is Always Breaking"

Todd Davis, Erin Marie Lynch, John Murillo and Issam Zineh

This Alice Walker quote ends with the observation that "through that broken window" artists see the world. Melancholy, longing and the raw truth are often revealed in a poet's words. So how do poets protect their emotions when writing intimately about profound subjects? How is the craft of poetry best executed while navigating tenderness and vulnerability?

12:30 – 1:40PM

New Jersey Historical Society
Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

2 – 3:10PM

Clement's Place
Poetry Generative Writing Workshop with Dimitri Reyes

The Dodge Poetry Festival is now offering an intimate space to generate new work with support from festival poets. Thought-provoking prompts will get your writing flowing in a 70-minute workshop. Space is first come, first served. Please be prepared with a pen and paper; arrive promptly and plan to stay for the full 70 minutes.

saturday, october 19

2 – 3:10PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

Disability Visibility

Ariana Benson, torrin a. greathouse, Naomi Ortiz and Jessica Ram

This reading and conversation will explore what it means to be a person with disabilities and if/how that identity informs creativity and self-expression. The varying strengths, emotions and physical conditions of writers with disabilities make building a community of inclusion nuanced. What does it mean to identify as a writer with a disability? What barriers in the poetry business need to be removed to promote accessibility? And how do we create spaces for conversations on disability justice? CART captioned.

2 – 3:10PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral

Griots, Troubadours, and MCs: Poetry & the Oral Tradition

Joshua Bennett, Imani Cezanne, Marwa Helal and Caridad De La Luz (La Bruja)

For thousands of years before the invention of the printing press, people created poetry meant to be performed. From the areito performances of the indigenous tribes of the Caribbean and the griots of Western Africa, to modern day slammers and MCs, the spoken word has been central to poetry's vitality, proving that poetry has always been meant to be recited, performed and sung! In these sessions, poets are invited to perform works that celebrate the oral/aural wonders of poetry.

2 – 3:10PM

St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral

Muddy with Ash:

Community and Writing

George Abraham, Ashna Ali, Noah Arhm Choi and Gein Wong

Andrea Abi-Karam writes, "Poetry provides a way to inhabit revolutionary practice, to ground ourselves in our relations to ourselves and each other, to think about an unevenly miserable world and to spit in its face." Reorienting Reads, a collective of trans, nonbinary and intersex Asian diasporic writers, was formed in response to the erasure of lives and stories. What is the role of poetry in social reimagination? How could we look to queerness and transness to articulate possibilities beyond hierarchy and corporate organization? This session will consider the ways that poetry, transness and community might animate our efforts to create new worlds that center our collective liberation. This session was specially curated by festival poet Ching-In Chen.

2 – 3:10PM

Express Newark

Poetry Foundation Presents:

Ruth Lilly and Dorothy

Sargent Rosenberg

Poetry Fellows

Rob Macaisa Colgate, Marissa Davis, Hermelinda Hernandez Monjaras, Chandanie Somwaru and marion eames white

The Poetry Foundation presents the first public group reading of the 2024 Ruth Lilly and Dorothy Sargent Rosenberg Fellows. The annual fellowship, awarded since 1989, honors outstanding young poets for their current and potential future contributions to poetry. Located in Chicago, Illinois, the Poetry Foundation publishes Poetry magazine, hosts free poetry events, provides grants to nonprofit organizations with a core commitment to poetry and the literary arts and more in service of amplifying poetry and celebrating poets.

2 – 3:10PM

New Jersey Historical Society

Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

saturday, october 19

3:30 – 4:40PM

Clement's Place

Poetry Generative Writing Workshop with Esther Lin

The Dodge Poetry Festival is now offering an intimate space to generate new work with support from festival poets. Thought-provoking prompts will get your writing flowing in a 70-minute workshop. Space is first come, first served. Please be prepared with a pen and paper; arrive promptly and plan to stay for the full 70 minutes.

3:30 – 4:40PM

Chase Room, NJPAC

What's at Stake?
Writing Our Truths

Cortney Lamar Charleston,
Omotara James,
Eduardo Martinez-Leyva
and Myles Taylor

Writing is a privilege and a power. When we write our hard truths, how do we grapple with the ripple effects of our poems' impact on friends, family and communities? How do we focus on the craft and muster the courage to be vulnerable while also realizing that our writing can have consequences? Poets will explore ways they navigate writing honest work that effect change, and the responsibilities that come with it.

CART captioned.

3:30 – 4:40PM

Trinity & St. Philip's Cathedral

Dear Yusef: A Celebration

Joel Dias-Porter, Dante Micheaux, Yesenia Montilla, John Murillo and Nicole Sealey

Yusef Komunyakaa is not only one of the most influential poets of the last half-century, but also one of its most beloved teachers and mentors. This reading features fellow poets, friends and former students reading from the anthology gathered in his honor, Dear Yusef: Letters, Poems, and Essays For and About One Mr. Komunyakaa, edited by poets John Murillo and Nicole Sealey.

3:30 – 4:40PM

Express Newark

The Things We Don't Talk About

Kai Coggin, Diana Goetsch, Janine Joseph and Raina León

Poems can be lighthearted and fun, but they can also be the medium through which we have tough conversations about topics we don't often feel comfortable discussing. Poets who bring to light hushed topics, and constantly ask the tough questions in their work, read their poems and discuss how poetry can give voice to communities often silenced — particularly members of the BIPOC, LGBTQIA+ and the disability communities.

3:30 – 4:40PM

New Jersey Historical Society

Festival Open Mic

Here is your opportunity to read your poetry in front of other festival goers — whether it's your first time or 50th time! Share your work in our supportive community by bringing one poem (no longer than three minutes) to read aloud on the mic.

Don't miss the pop-up bookstore provided by Source of Knowledge! Book signing schedules will be posted in the bookstore daily.

Outside of NICO Kitchen + Bar NJPAC

HOURS:

Thursday
9:30AM – 10PM

Friday
8:30AM – 8PM

Saturday
8:30AM – 11PM

Developing a Lexicon
Toward Liberation

Ricardo Alberto Maldonado,
Aurielle Marie, Anastacia-Reneé
and Marcus Wicker

How do poets from marginalized and vulnerable communities experiment with new forms and definitions of poetry to create language that is all their own, that expresses the experiences of their communities? Hear from innovative poets who play on the page, offer breathtaking translations and reclaim power through text and language.

“Poetry, Like Bread,
is For Everyone”

Adrian Matejka, Stephanie Pacheco and Claire Schwartz

Is poetry accessible? How can we use language to create opportunities for communities to feel included and seen? Inspired by the idea that poetry is a necessity, this session is an opportunity to talk about the ways in which each of us are creators of art, and how crucial poetry is to the evolution of our nation and society. Poets from different styles and backgrounds come together to talk about making poetry an art form that is available for all.

The Body, a Praise Song
Meg Day, Cynthia Manick,
Leah Lakshmi
Piepzna-Samarasinha
and Danez Smith

We invite you to celebrate all the ways our bodies are both strong and vulnerable. This session is an opportunity to praise our bodies, their functionalities and frailties, and acknowledge all the ways in which we are connected in spite of our bodies' differences. Join us and witness the intersections of the body and the spirit. ASL interpreted.

Find the pre-recorded content on njpac.org/series/dodgepoetry.